To Make Music

Financial Support for Your Child's Music Lessons

Are you already struggling to pay for music lessons ? Does your child dream of learning an instrument, participating in music ensembles, or pursuing their musical potential, but financial constraints are holding you back? In either case the Cheryl King Trust, a registered charity may well be able to help.

The Trust believes that music should be accessible to every young person, regardless of their financial circumstances. It offers financial assistance for group or individual instrumental lessons with professional music teachers, music exams, accompanists, and participation in courses, workshops, and ensembles.

Your child does not need to be a musical prodigy. The Cheryl King Trust celebrates the joy of music at all levels, from beginners to advanced students.

- Age: 18 years or younger.
- Income: Your combined annual family income should typically be at or below £42,000. (Exceptions may be made for incomes up to £50,000 in special cases.)
